

The Dress

by Sherlyn Chavez Rangel

Everytime I wear this dress
I am reminded of all the memories
We made when we hung out on that day
But now I just stare at it sitting in my closet
Waiting for me to throw it away

That was the person I was
So much has changed and yet you don't know it
Our memories won't go away
But I didn't go to stay